Preamble

Active Pharmaceutical Ingredients (API) of good quality are core to the manufacturing of effective and safe essential drugs. In the pharmaceutical industry sourcing of APIs is now being considered as a crucial part of industry's strategic plan and India is one of the top countries from which APIs are sourced. A relentless focus on quality thus has to be paramount to all activities undertaken by Contract Development and Manufacturing Organizations developing Active Pharmaceutical Ingredients and other chemicals. It's not only required to meet current Good Manufacturing Practices standards and regulatory requirements, but it's also what sets the most successful CDMOs apart. Ensuring quality and integrity of Active Pharmaceutical Ingredients today requires understanding and incorporating quality and risk management principles throughout the API lifecycle and raw material supply chain. An approach that not only proactively identifies risks associated with manufacturing processes but also proactively identifies and reduces risks by ensuring raw material quality and performance is very important.

The prime objectives of seminar is to provide understanding on various requirements in terms of

- Regulatory issues and challenges of API manufacturing and compliance
- Current compliance issues of API with reference to impurities
- Regulatory requirements of the API and procedures for Certification of Suitability.
